President's Letter

Wyoming Adventure and Fly Fishing

Recently several of us spent a week in Wyoming at Camp Buffalo Bill. This is a high adventure Scout camp West of Cody Wyoming where the Scout program is conducted in the months of June and July. After the Scout program is finished, the camp conducts four weeks of fly fishing to acquire additional funding for the camp. Each week the camp invites approximately 30 anglers to come and stay at the camp and experience fishing and northwest Wyoming. Our week was the last week of August and originally at capacity but like so many other events, COVID caused several anglers to cancel. There were eleven DCFF members and six other anglers from Ohio, Kansas, and Lexington KY that we got to fellowship with and share our experience. One word about COVID. There are twice as many residents in Jefferson County KY as there are in the entire state of Wyoming. Wyoming is a "social distancing" state.

Our trip was so enjoyable we have reserved the last week of August 2021 for 24 anglers and the board has decided to make this a regular club trip scheduled for August 2021. The camp has agreed to hold our reservation before opening to the public. However, if you want to reserve your spot, a $200 deposit will be required by December 31. More to come in the following weeks on how to register for this trip.

Following is our experience and what to expect.

Northwest Wyoming – Everywhere you turn in this area looks like a postcard. Some of the most scenic territory you can imagine. We saw mule deer, elk, bison, coyote, fox, and some other un-identifiable critters. It was disappointing that no bears were spotted but that didn't keep the staff from warning you about grizzlies. Truly a beautiful part of our country.

Wyoming Weather in August – Typically the temps can range from 30's to 90's and it has snowed in latter August; however we did not experience snow. I think our coldest morning was mid 40's and our hottest afternoon was mid 90's with most days ranging from mid 50's to mid 80's. We had some rain and a hailstorm but it was at night and did not affect our activities.

The camp – The camp is located right on the Shoshone river where there are miles of fishing opportunities. Accommodations are rustic. Our cabins consisted of bunk beds (mine was very comfortable) with a couple of small tables. There is no cell service or wi-fi but there is a land line for emergency calls. They do have electricity in the cabins but no heat or AC but each cabin has windows that can be opened and a fan. You will be responsible for your own linens, towels, and sleeping bag and pillow. There is a shower house that was always a comfortable temp with ample showers and facilities. But the center of the camp is the dining hall where all the gathering and fellowship occurs. This is a large building that is open 24 hours a day with complimentary snacks and drinks available. Three meals each day are prepared. By the way, the cook is a retired caterer who has served meals to three presidents and catered events for as many as 15,000! I cannot say enough about the meals you will receive. The food was fantastic!

The Staff – The staff is very accommodating. They will take you where ever you want to go on the river and return to pick you up. The camp has four vans and the staff will transport you up or down stream to many fishing locations. If at least 5 folks want to go to Yellowstone (a 1-1/2 hour drive one way) or to Jackson Hole and the Grand Tetons (a long all day trip), they will arrange for that also. For days you want to get out early, a continental breakfast will be waiting on you at departure. If you want to stay out longer, sandwiches are prepared to take with you.

The Fishing – The fishing was not like I have ever experienced. The best word I heard to describe it was "humbling". The water is gin clear, fast, and skinny. Wading and walking alongside the river is not easy with rocks from pebbles to boulders ranging from basketball to refrigerator size. Expect to catch rainbow, brown, and cutthroat. A lot are in the greater than 15" range. These fish are not hatchery raised and pellet fed fish like we are used to catching. They are wild fish that are finicky and spooky in the gin clear water. A 10 fish day is an exceptional day. A very exceptional day.

The adventure – This trip is about 50% fishing and 50% adventure. One of the fishing locations near camp is a feeder creek that requires a long hike through rugged terrain. I did not participate in this excursion but the several that did are still talking about it.

One afternoon, I and four others did hike to a unique rock formation along a knife edge ridge about 650 ft in additional elevation above the camp. This was a challenging hike and one of the most enjoyable and memorable things I did.

A group of about 15 or so went to Cody one evening to dinner and a rodeo. Cody is an old town with a lot of history and interesting restaurants.

I and several others made two trips to Yellowstone mixing sightseeing and fishing on the Yellowstone River.

Cost – The entire week cost $700 (may be subject to change slightly) plus you are responsible for your own transportation to Cody. My flight was about $400. The camp cost includes transportation from the airport to the camp and return, transportation while at the camp, accommodations, and three excellent meals daily. A 5-day Wyoming non-resident license was $56 and an additional day is $14. If you go to Yellowstone, there is an additional license requirement but minimal. This trip is truly a bargain.

See a few pictures from the trip farther down in the Newsletter.

I hope to see you next August in Wyoming!

Finally, we want to thank Doug Stull for all his great work on this Newsletter over the last five years. He single handedly revived the Newsletter, turning it into a monthly chronicle of Club happenings, adding pictures to put faces with names and personalizing it to the extent that you felt like you were sitting with him chatting about what was going on in the club. We are truly indebted to him for being the face of Derby City Fly Fishers to everyone, especially those who can't routinely make it to our meetings and events. He leaves a great legacy that will be tough to follow. THANKS DOUG you're one of a kind!!!
