President's Letter

My other target species

By Matt Clements:

So, I've said before, I enjoy trout fishing. I fish in the cool seasons (because that is when the fish are local), and tie in the summer time. Seriously, it is downright miserable in this region in the summertime.

I went fishing with Jessy, my brother, and his friend on the Cumberland in June or July one year. We quit early on day three because the temperature made it "not fun." James literally turned to me and said "this is stupid, I'm going home." And he was right. Heat like that was inspiration for Dante's Inferno.

But I also enjoy bluegill fishing. Fishing at a farm pond, the random pond or lake in a park, the pond at Norton Commons after work at my old job.

Many evenings in high school were spent at a park south of St. Louis that we had access to through my dad's union. There was a golf course that most of the park patrons went for, and a lake that almost no one fished.

We would get the grill going and cook some bratwurst or hot dogs, and fly fish with foam spiders for bluegill along the bank. On the east side of a hill, protected from the sun. I think there is something to be said for the ability to spend the waning hours of an evening in the shade with some gently moving air, tossing a foam spider to aggressive fish.

Eli mentions going fishing, always when it is oppressive outside. If I can manage to get him to take a nap, I think we need to plan an evening trip.

It's warming up outside, and the bluegills are getting restless!

Bernie Rauen with a nice Pigeon River Brown

Derby City Fly Fishers, North Carolina Report

By Mike Parker

Wow! First it's 80 and sunny, next it's snowing and 32!!! Crazy, crazy, crazy! At least the fish weren't too bothered!

Well, we just wrapped up another DCFE sponsored club trip to the beautiful creeks and streams in the mountains of western, North Carolina.

Attendance was fantastic with a total of 18 (4 non-fishers) all enjoying some great fishing on the West Fork of the Pigeon, the West Fork of the Tuckasegee, and the Raven Fork (Cherokee Trophy Water), and Jonathan Creek.

Our evening drinks and dinners were again at Bocelli's (upstairs) in Waynesville and at the Bearwater Brewing Company (next door to the Jonathan Creek Inn) in Maggie Valley. Several people also tried out Bogart's Restaurant and Tavern and Boojum Brewery Taproom both in Waynesville, receiving rave reviews, as well as Maggie's Galley Seafood. Lodging for some was the Econolodge in Waynesville as well as the tried and true Jonathan Creek Inn in Maggie Valley. A special thanks and shoutout goes to Shannon, guide and owner of KSOUTDOORS for working with Joan and the Knowles boys (Steve and Jamie). Check out the videos in the links included here and here for a little taste of our members in action. All in all, I think it was another great trip! Nobody went swimming (that I know of) and everyone enjoyed both the fishing and the comradery. Remember, we head that way again in November so get on the list early.

Thanks all, Mike and Mike

Editors note: Thanks to Mike Parker and Michael Ragan for leading the trip!.

A successful Instructional Outing at the Parklands!

On Saturday, April 30th, Derby City Fly Fishers hosted an instructional outing at the Parklands. This outing was conducted in conjunction with a Fishing Workshop hosted by The Parklands Education team with support from Kentucky

Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources. DCFF provided fly casting and knot tying instruction as well information on lines & leaders, flies, rods & reels and general fly fishing topics. The event was very well attended with roughly 30 participants as well as a terrific number of DCFF volunteer helpers. Long time DCFF member

Wes Krupiczewicz did an incredible job coordinated the outing. A BIG THANKS to Wes!!

As a fantastic bonus, several families and individuals signed up as new members !

Rare Springtime Low Water on the Cumberland

By George Tipker

Ralph

Swallows and I met fellow club members Mike Scheid and his son-in-law JT, for a weekend (April 2 & 3) of fishing on the Cumberland. Both parties boated approximately 40 fish a day. Unusually Low Cumberland River water levels(for this time of year) availed itself to us for eight daylight hours in the afternoon/evenings. Had a wonderful early spring weekend of good weather, great camaraderie and pretty decent catching.
